

Universal Guild Wars Tournament Rules

Effective August 1, 2006

Appendix A: Player Expectations

ArenaNet representatives will observe every game. ArenaNet reserves the right to disqualify guilds if any guild member engages in unsportsmanlike conduct, interferes with or disrupts the timely play of any player or guild, causes delays or otherwise violates the Guild Wars World Championship Rules. Unsportsmanlike conduct may include, but is not limited to: committing any criminal act or civil tort, being under the influence of drugs or alcohol, using abusive, antagonistic or threatening language or gestures, profanity, or racial slurs; making excessive noise; creating excessive chat spam; failure to abide by ArenaNet instructions; cheating or attempted cheating; or attempting to cause crashes or disconnects.

ArenaNet may disqualify any player and/or guild that commits unsportsmanlike conduct, interferes with or disrupts the timely play of any player or guild, causes delays or otherwise violates the Guild Wars World Championship or Universal Guild Wars Tournament Rules.

ArenaNet may ask the official representative of a guild to relay information from ArenaNet to guild members. Official representatives must maintain a current list of guild member names, addresses, email address, and telephone numbers to facilitate such communication.

Appendix B: Guild Wars Ladder Rating and Ranking Systems

Elo Ratings System

The Guild Wars Ladder uses Elo ratings for each season.

This Elo rating system compares a guild's match records against their opponents' match records and determines the probability of the guild winning the matchup. This probability factor determines how many points a guild's rating goes up or down based on the results of each match. When a guild defeats an opposing guild with a higher rating, the guild's rating goes up more than if they defeated a guild with a lower rating (since guilds have a high probability of defeating those with lower ratings). All new guilds start out with a base rating of 1000. The Guild Wars tournament ladder uses the following equation to determine a guild's win probability in each match:

$$\text{Win Probability} = \frac{1}{10^{((\text{Opposing Guild's Rating} - \text{Guild's Rating})/400)} + 1}$$

This probability is then used to recalculate each guild's rating after the match. In the equation below, guilds receive 1 point if they win the match and 0 if they lose. The guild's new ratings are determined as follows:

$$\text{Guild's New Rating} = \text{Guild's Old Rating} + (\text{K-Value} * (\text{Scoring Points} - \text{Guild's Win Probability}))$$

All guilds are rated at the beginning with the first match in which they play. Further ratings are calculated chronologically from that first match.

The K-Value which is the maximum number of points a guild's rating may go up or down based on the results of a single match within an event that uses the Elo ratings system is currently 30.

The Guild Wars Ladder ranks guilds in geographic regions based on their Elo ratings to determine the top guilds in each area.

Appendix C: Skill Rarity

The following skill rarity is to be used in all Guild Wars sanctioned limited play tournaments (see Skill Card Distribution above).

Appendix D – Guild Wars Skill Card Register Sheet

A tournament organizer may request that each player in a limited event register the 16 skill cards that they will be entering the first round of the tournament with for later verification purposes. A skill card register sheet can be used for this purpose and will be added to our website at a later date.
